FIREMEN FOUGHT A STUBBORN FIRE EARLY LAST NIGHT

Plant of Guilford Lumber Company Almost Totally Destroyed—The Loss Over $30,000 With $7,000 Insurance—Fine Work Prevented Flames From Spreading

Fire last night destroyed almost the entire plant of the Guilford Lumber Company, entailing a loss of between $30,000 and $40,000, only $7,000 being covered by insurance. The firemen by hard and persistent work prevented the flames from spreading to the adjoining lumber plants, though for a time it looked as if the entire lumber district of the city was doomed.

The fire originated in the dry kiln and in a few minutes gained considerable headway. An alarm was turned in at 8:35, calling the entire department to the scene. In a few minutes no less than a dozen nozzles were sending streams of water on the fiery mass and the battle was on in dead earnest. The dry buildings and masses of lumber piled alongside burned like tinder and sent flames hundreds of feet into the air, making it appear from a distance as if the entire city was in flames. The heat was intense and the thousands of spectators were forced to keep at a respectful distance and allow the firemen to have all the room they needed.

The plant of the Guilford Lumber Company fronts on Ashe street and extends back to Lewis street, a portion lying on the west side of Ashe street. This portion was practically all that remained when the firemen finally got the fire and the larger portion of this huge plant lay a smouldering mass of ruins. It was evident that the fire originated near the center of the plant for this portion was burning fiercest when the firemen reached the scene. The Ashe street office was also burning at a lively rate, as was the main building fronting on Lewis street. The entire plant was surrounded by firemen and nozzles turned on the flames from every direction. After it was seen that there was no hope of saving the portion of the plant under the flames the efforts of the firemen were largely directed in holding the flames at bay and in this they succeeded admirably. The building used as a glass house and a couple of piles of lumber were all that remained of the property between Ashe and Lewis streets.

The fire was the most severe one that has visited Greensboro in several years, in fact since the plant of the Southern Bobbin Company was burned more than two years ago. And it was in a locality where everything was favorable for a conflagration amounting to losses of hundreds of thousands of dollars. On one side of the fire and separated only by the width of a railroad track was the lumber plant of Pitts & Monroe and the plant of the Greensboro Ice & Coal Company while just across Ashe street was the lumber plant of E. E. Bain and on the south side and separated only by a narrow alley was the foundry of G. T. Glascock & Sons. Adjoining this was the large grocery store of Hepler Bros. At one time the wind rose for a few moments and it looked as if the efforts of the firemen would be in vain. However, the wind lay and the streams of water kept the flames within the burning buildings. Had the wind been blowing a lively gale it is not believed that the firemen could have prevented the entire block from going up, even if they had been successful in preventing the spread to the block across Ashe street.

Throughout the fire the water pressure was strong, despite the fact that streams were pouring from all sides. Had there been a scarcity of water the firemen would have been powerless to save the entire lumber district.

W. D. Mendenhall, secretary-treasurer of the company, stated last night that he had no idea as to how the fire originated. He said that the watchman first discovered it in a dry kiln when the blaze was comparatively small, but before he could rush to a box and turn in an alarm it was bursting from the roof and rapidly spreading to the other buildings. Mr. Mendenhall stated that the loss would be considerable but he did not believe it would reach $40,000. The

GUILFORD COUNTY READY FOR FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION

Chief Events at Battleground and White Oak—Preparations Are Complete For Entertainment Of Thousands—Baseball This Afternoon.

Today is July Fourth, and will be observed in true patriotic style by the citizens of Greensboro and Guilford county. Thousands will gather on the historic battlefield of Guilford Court House for the annual celebration of the great victory that turned the tide in the struggles of '76-'81, and proved to be a great factor in securing the independence of the thirteen colonies. Then those who do not attend the celebration there will gather at White Oak for the annual picnic given by the management of the mills to their employees and friends. Then this afternoon at 4 o'clock the ball teams of Winston and Greensboro will meet at Cone Park for the second game of the day. Truly there will be something doing to suit the tastes of every one and the day will no doubt be enjoyed to its fullest extent.

At the Battle Ground.

For weeks past President Scheck of the Battle Ground Company, has been making arrangements for this annual event and no pains have been spared to make the celebration the greatest event in the history of th association.

Hon. Cy Watson is on the program to deliver a memorial address on the life and services of the late Joseph M. Morehead, for years president of the Battle Ground Company. Those who have heard Col. Watson speak know that a treat is in store for them and he will doubtless bvat his best on this occasion. He was a lifelong friend of Maj. Morehead and no one could be found more qualified to make this address than Col. Watson.

A prominent feature of the celebration will be the presentation of a replica of the famous battle flag carried by Green's regulars during this celebrated battle. The flag will be presented by J. Bryan Grimes in behalf of the Sons of the American Revolution. Hon. Alfred M. Scales will accept the flag in behalf of the Battle Ground Company.

The program will begin at 10 o'clock with the forming of the procession and the speech making will commence at 11 o'clock. At the conclusion of the program at the pavilion there will be a balloon ascension and parachute drops. Then will follow dinner. The afternoon may be spent in inspecting the battle field or renewing old acquaintances. Dinner will be served on the grounds for all who do not care to carry lunches. People from the rural districts will come in covered wagons and bring quantities of choice edibles for themselves and friends.

The Southern Railway has put on special rates for the occasion and will run special trains from West Market street crossing to the Battle Ground every 40 minutes during the day, excepting the hour for dinner. The fare for the round trip will be 25 cents.

The White Oak Picnic.

All of yesterday scores of workmen were busy at the picnic grounds getting the final details of the big annual event given by the management of Proximity, Revolution and White Oak Mills to their employees and friends. Men were busy slicing pineapples and packing them in sugar and lemons, canteloupes, tomatoes, water melons, etc., were being hauled to the picnic ground by the wagon loads. One hundred and fifty uniformed waiters will be on hand today to serve the good things to eat that have been gathered from every part of the continent.

Every detail has been so arranged as to make the day one of unalloyed pleasure for the ten thousand operatives and their families and several thousand friends who have been invited to participate in the festivities of the day. There will be music of various kinds, concerts, vaudeville, various kinds of races and contests and last but by no means least, the annual addresses of the management of the mills and the superintendents and the awarding of prizes for best kept yards and lawns. The festivities will begin at 9.30 o'clock and continue throughout the entire day.

The Ball Game.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock at Cone Park what promises to be the best ball game of the season will be pulled off

CLARK OR FOLK IN MISSOURI.

The news comes from Washington City that Speaker Champ Clark will refuse to ask for the Democratic nomination for President because of the fact that his own State is pledged to support Joseph W. Folk for the nomination. The ground upon which it is urged that Missouri is pledged to Folk is the action of the last Missouri Democratic convention, which unanimously endorsed Folk as the State's candidate for the nomination. It is said, also, that this action was taken with the knowledge and consent of Congressman Clark, who agreed to the endorsement of Folk provided he was given the endorsement of the State in his candidacy for Speaker. This situation effectually blocks Clark's chances of securing the endorsement of his own State for President, as it seems that Missouri Democratic leaders feel that they are bound to support Folk; and it likewise appears that Clark recognizes the claim Folk has upon the support of the State and, therefore, refuses to enter the contest. That is the news which comes from Washington and from Missouri; but it is said in this connection that Senator Reed of Missouri has returned home from Washington with the purpose of bringing the State's Democratic leaders together in a conference in order that Mr. Folk may be approached and asked to release the Missouri Democracy from its pledge to support him, so that the delegation from that State may throw its support to Clark.

The mission of Senator Reed would appear to be a very delicate one and its termination rather difficult to forecast. Champ Clark cannot afford to offer for the nomination unless he is backed by the delegates from his own State, and that State is pledged to another man. If it is true, also, that the pledge to Folk was made with Clark's knowledge and consent—in fact, was in the nature of a political trade—it is certain that Clark is effectually put out of the race and it is evidently going to be a difficult task for the Speaker's friends to handle the situation so as to eliminate Folk without offending a leader of recognized ability who has probablyy the largest personal following of any Democrat in the State. However, it is said that this is what the friends of Clark have undertaken to do and that they are actuated by the belief that Folk will stand no chance to be nominated, while Clark's chancees are good; and the opinion that Clark would be able to lead the party to victory, which Folk would be unable to do.

The opinion of the country at large is, no doubt, that Missouri should support Clark if she proposes to put forward a candidate for the nomination. Of the two men, Folk is the man of greatest force of character and intellectual capacity and has enjoyed wide contact with the people of his State, but he lacks Clark's experience in the larger field of national politics and his thorough acquaintance with national problems. Clark is known from end to end of the country, while Folk is practically unknown to the average citizen. Clark is popular with the people at this time because of his stand for the national legislation which the masses have demanded. This is greatly in his favor in securing the nomination or in making the fight for the Presidency. It is certain that Clark would prove Missouri's strongest candidate for the nomination, and it is generally believed he would prove much stronger than Folk as the opponent of the Republican standard bearer. Folk is a man of splendid qualities and of unquestioned character; and if as well known nationally as Clark is, it is doubtful if Missouri would think it necessary to attempt to side-track his candidacy in favor of Clark; but as the case stands, Senator Reed and his friends may be adopting the right course.

Missouri naturally desires to present to the convention the strongest candidate for the nomination, and it is due the party that Missouri should offer the man whose chances of winning, if nominated, are the greatest. Missouri should offer her most available man. Missourians apparently believe this man is Clark. However, there will be some developments at an early date which will disclose what the leaders of the party in that State really think of the availability of Clark and Folk; and the country will watch with interest to see how the State leaders will proceed in the matter of eliminating Folk and substituting Clark, should they determine to adopt that course.

Durham Herald thinks if the near beer dealers of Greensboro sold nothing but near beer they were an exception to the rule.

In view of recent developments, there seems to be at present a splendid opportunity for the "kissing bug" to "come back."

It is clearly evident that it will be difficult to drive the nail trust out of business if the public attempts to do it by driving the products of the trust.

Massachusetts woman slept 86 days. People have been known to exceed that limit in Greenville, S. C., without exciting any comment.

The last session of the legislature of Illinois passed an act which prohibits the employment of women for more than ten hours per day in any capacity in that State. The law became effective July first.

Philadelphia steeplejack startled those who witnessed the feat, by sitting on a church steeple while he ate his lunch. Perhaps he was merely trying to get up in the vicinity of the cost of living to take his meal.

It is said that Champ Clark will make speeches in Kentucky favoring the election of Congressman Ollie James to the United States Senate. Perhaps his opponents will secure the services of Governor Harmon and Governor Wilson.

The woman whose hand was sought by two aviators and who agreed to marry the one who flew the highest was very much like many other women. Lots of women have made the mistake of selecting for husbands the high flyers who flew the highest.

Hoke Smith is Governor of Georgia again, and in a few days he is likely to be elected United States Senator. Political events move with startling rapidity in Georgia and none but statesmen of the most strenuous type are able to stay in the limelight for any length of time.

George P. Ward, 73 years of age, said to be the oldest "news boy" in the world lost his job at Middletown, Conn., because he got too slow to deliver three hundred papers on schedule time. The oldest news boy in the world appears to be entitled to a rest and a pension instead of loss of his job.

The weather in Greensboro is as fine as that at some of the summer resorts. Of course it has been hot and dry here, but the majority of the spring and summer nights have been cool and many of them delightful, and that is about all that can be said of most of the summer resorts. The difference in Greensboro and the summer resorts is that the latter have capitalized and commercialized their climate and Greensboro has not done so. The air and water and cool nights are free here. All who desire to come and enjoy these blessings without having them charged in the bill will be welcomed to this city.

Do You Know Your Own Mind?

(By AMANDA MOORE.)

The world is full of folks who do not know their own minds. And, to follow up the thought, that is why there are so many discontented people; for how can you get what you want if you have no definite idea of what you really do want?

Nearly all of you will have one or more friends whom you know to be discontented, and if you test my opening statement on them I venture to believe that in many cases they will be able to give you no clearly defined reason for their attitude, and treat you to a mere series of shapeless grumblings at fate.

Perhaps some of you may be like this yourselves. If that is so take my earnest advice and take immediate steps to cure yourself.

If you are vaguely discontented with your lot, ask yourself the reason and insist upon getting an answer. It may be that you will come to the conclusion that you are suffering from slight indigestion, and do not take enough exercise. Or it may be something really serious; for instance, that you have to earn your living, and hate the work in which you are engaged.

Having got at the cause, you may take steps to remove it. Everything yields to proper treatment, including indigestion and work you don't like. In the latter case you can force yourself to take an interest in the work, or you can set about abtaining more congenial employment; and it is to be found if you know what you want, and are determined to find it.

There are a lot of people drifting aimlessly about, and who, though not necessarily discontented, do not know their own minds, and never strike a real success in any line.

Take this matter of love, for instance. I know you have been wondering impatiently when I was going to allude to the great motor power that "makes the world go round," and if you keep your eyes and your ears open you will soon learn how many there are who do not know their own minds about what has been said to be "woman's sole existence."

You will all of you know lots of girls who talk about Tom, Dick and Harry as though they were quite ready to fall in love with any of them, I may be wrong, but I do not think that is the type of girl who is most likely to marry. The girl who is ready to accept almost any man through having no fixed tastes is the girl who in all probability attract no man sufficiently for him to wish to see her the other side of the table at all his meals.

Cultivate your individuality. Everyone has some sort of personality, even though a weak one. Flabby-minded folk never attract. To be magnetic you must be original. This does not mean necessarily that you must be very clever; but it means that to be successful in anything, those with whom you come in contact must find some quality in you which they do not find in anyone else.

Sense in Short Sentences

A political party is a device by means of which men are led to build animosities on principles, and then to forget the principles.

TUESDAY

It is the day we celebrate, when people humble, people great will suddenly combusticate—
Tuesday!
In every village orators will leave their crops and other chores and spout their wisdom out-o'-doors—
Tuesday!
Wherever flies the spangled flag you'll see some sort of patriot gag, some marshal on his weary nag—
Tuesday!
In city streets you'll see the mob distinctly on the crazy job, and accidents in many a gob—
Tuesday!
The hospitals will reap their toll and many a worry-weary soul will wend to seek its peaceful goal—
Tuesday!
Where safe and sane is made the call you'll hear full many a blistered bawl, for shootin's shootin', after all—
Tuesday!
And when the day is over, then you'll pound the hay like other men and pull that solemn: "Never again!"—
Tuesday!
But twelve months later you will skate
the same thin ice, and loudly prate about the day we celebrate—
Tuesday!

For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. H. C. Poole, 601 E. Green St., High Point, N. C., says: "Some time ago I noticed that my kidneys were not doing their work properly, the kidney secretions being irregular in passage and causing me a great deal of distress. My back was so weak that after stooping, I had to take hold of something and pull myself up again. I was troubled by dizzy spells and my head ached constantly. My rest at night was broken and in the morning I was so tired and weak that I could hardly drag myself around. Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured me and I am grateful to them."

Monday's Session Of Municipal Court

Four negroes appeared as defendants in Municipal Court yesterday morning on four distinct charges, each of them being one of the usual misdemeanors that daily crowd the court docket. Wesley Craig was found guilty of an assault on a negress, in which he battered her up rather severely in his drunken rage. He was given three months at hard labor on the city streets.

Willie Todd, a negress was convicted of vagrancy and was sentenced to a term of thirty days in the county workhouse.

The case against Jessie Davis for cursing and swearing in public places was discharged on the payment of the costs.

Tom Curry was captured Sunday while playing an interesting game of "skin," and as the testimony showed he was caught in the act, a serious case was made out against him. A road sentence was first imposed but on the plea of the negro it was changed to a heavy fine. He paid $30 plus the costs for gambling.

WHEN AUNT CALLY GAVE UP

Worm Turned at Last on Ironing "Mis' Portly's" Voluminous Skirts.

Aunt Cally belongs distinctly to the type of "born not made" laundresses She loves her ironing board exactly so wide and just so long. She wants plenty of blanket and sheet on it so the embroidery stands out clear and she carries her own piece of beeswax around in her apron pocket. Maybe the magic is in that piece of wax, for she has carried it always, it seems. The irons work well for her because she selects them at just the right heat and then she administers a little pat which she calls "tasein' 'em," applies a little wax and off they go, making the linens look as if they were polished.

But Aunt Cally, like other artists, has not escaped trials. She likes to see her work grow and has pride in counting the number of pieces she can do in a day.

The trouble is, she has washed a long time for a woman of tremendous proportions and she has become discouraged.

"I done stop washin' fuh Mis' Portly!" she announced the other day.

"Why, how can she get along without you? About ten years you have done her washing, isn't it?"

"Yas'm. I don't know'm what she goin' do. But, I jes cain stan' it no longer. Tell de truth, I jes' lief un'take a trip 'round de world es to iron one o' her skirts."

HE KNEW ABOUT THE ORIENT

One Occasion on Which Venerable and Infallible Joke Partially Failed.

"They" were chatting in the smoking room of a litle Koninklijke Paketvaart Maatschappij coaster, on a two months' run among the islands below the equator, when some one speaking of the Malay peninsula, some one else said: "My impression of the straits settlements can be summed up in a single picture: A strong, black man, standing in the center of a muddy stream, trying to split a rock with a shirt."

Now this always provokes a laugh; it is venerable and infallible. But to my surprise, says Frederick S. Isham, the novelist, one of the smoking room contingent, on this occasion it partially failed. What was the trouble? The delinquent, the one man out of seven who didn't laugh, was sallow, saturnine, and English.

"What's the matter, old chap?" asked the novelist. "Don't you see the point or are you waiting until tomorrow to wake up to it?"

The other turned his head wearily "See the point?" he said sadly. "I should think I did. I ought to. I," tragically, "am the man who owned the shirt."

Then we, knowing he had lived 25 years in the Orient, became silent; our laughter ceased. A sympathetic melancholy descended upon us. Englishman or not, we took him to our heart of hearts and made a brother of him.

The Former President of Defunct $8,000,000 Trust Company on Trial

The first of the trials of indicted officers of the defunct Carnegie Trust Company of New York, resulted in the conviction of Joseph B. Reichman. He was charged with making a false report of the condition of the institution to the State Banking Department. Reichman is only thirty-six years old, but is a business man of exceptional ability, having for several years drawn an annual salary of $50,000 as President of the National Starch Company and the Corn Products Company, both of which are subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company. In the above picture Reichman is seen walking with his counsel. Reichman uses a cane, being afflicted with paralysis.

BIG INCREASE IN FISH STATIONS

Bills In Congress Give One or More to Each State.

COMMISSION IS EXPENSIVE.

It Began With an Appropriation of $5,000 In 1875 and Has Shown Annual Growth Since—Congressman Anderson of Ohio Strives to Prevent Desecration of the Flag.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, July 3.—(Special.)—Bills for fish cultural stations for every state that has not been provided with such a government institution have been introduced in congress, and in many cases different states want two or more such stations.

Last session these bills were embodied in an omnibus bill, just as river and harbor improvements, public buildings and pensions are now passed. The bill did not go through, but it will as soon as enough states and congressional districts are provided for to give it a majority of the votes in both houses.

From a Small Beginning.

Away back in 1875 Henry L. Dawes was a member of the house from Massachusetts. He offered an amendment to one of the appropriation bills providing for the expenditure of $5,000 to enable two scientific men of the Smithsonian institution to investigate the disappearance of food fishes in north Atlantic waters. The appropriation was fought by those who claimed that this was a matter outside of the jurisdiction of the general government. But it went through.

From that small beginning we now have a very expensive fish commission with hatcheries in most of the states and more to follow, with special cars which transport fish all over the country, with fish steamers which sail all the seas, with numerous employees, some of whom, including the commissioner, go abroad to study fish at government expense. In fact, it has become one of the very expensive branches of the government. Much of the work it performs ought to be done by the states or private enterprise, but the idea prevails that whatever the people can get out of the government is so much gain, and that is why the fish commission flourishes.

Flag Desecration.

Congressman Anderson of Ohio does not fear to rush in where others have failed. He is not only championing a service pension bill which the Democratic leaders have determined to defeat, but he has also introduced and intends to push a bill to prevent the desecration of the American flag by using it for advertising purposes or any other purpose than the emblem of the nation's majesty.

The flag bill was a pet scheme of David B. Henderson's, and, although Henderson was powerful enough to become twice speaker of the house, he never was powerful enough to put through this bill. Now, why? Is it not strange that there are interests strong enough to prevent the passage of a bill which will prevent the use of the American flag for purposes other than a national emblem? Perhaps Anderson will find out why.

Root's Delicate Sarcasm.

Senator Martine, the new man from New Jersey, has not yet attempted a regular set speech, but he likes to break in on other senators with an alleged question and then give forth his views to the extent of a "stickful." He interrupted Senator Root last week, and this was the reply of the New Yorker:

"I am glad the senator from New Jersey has completed his question. He really ought not, under permission to ask a question, make my poor, dull remarks the matrix in which shall shine the bright jewels of his eloquence."

A Florida Prediction.

Dannitte H. Hays—and, by the way, there is a name for you, Dannitte, and one of the many new ones in this congress—is from Florida and makes predictions. He was speaking in the house and said:

"If this Democratic congress makes good and carries out its promises to the people, the man who beats Champ Clark for the presidency in 1912 will know that he has been in a race."

That this remark made a hit was evidenced by "applause on the Democratic side." which followed and which was not omitted from the Record.

Popular Billy Hughes.

Although Congressman Hughes of New Jersey gives the Republicans a great deal of trouble and raps them hard quite frequently, he is popular with the opposition. All of which shows that enemies are not made by partisan knocks. Hughes was having an exchange with Minority Leader Mann recently, and he let this one go:

'I have noticed that when the Republicans are considering the trust question they are very much afraid they are going to do something detrimental to the workingmen, and when they are considering the workingmen they are afraid they will hurt the trusts."

Speaking of Mann's rather finical style and referring to a bill that had been mentioned, he said, "I have no doubt that when the bill comes before the house the gentleman from Illinois will knock out a comma here and a period there and finally vote for it."

CURIOUS BALLOTS OF WOMEN

Shopping Lists Among Things Put in Envelopes by Careless Female Voters.

"What I liked about my old position," said the ex-secretary of a woman's club, "was the opportunity it gave me to see some of the funny things women put into their envelopes when taking a vote on anything by sealed ballot. Sometimes they left the ballot out altogether, but usually it accompanied the foreign inclosure. The majority of those inclosures were shopping lists, and if I had wanted to be mean I could have got many an interesting sidelight on a member's private economies. Other careless voters put letters into their envelopes. I never read any of them, but, judging by the fuss they made about getting them back, those letters no doubt furnished pretty interesting reading.

"One real romance grew out of mistaken ballots. A flighty young woman sealed up a marriage certificate in her envelope. She had been married three months, but nobody knew anything about it, and maybe we wouldn't have found it out yet if she hadn't been so proud of her marriage certificate that she had to take it out and look at it every few minutes, and so got it mixed up with her ballot. The assistant secretary opened most of the envelopes that day. The marriage certificate came to her, and the sight of it turned her head.

"'Why, what is this?' she said. 'Who has been getting married?'

"Everybody in the room heard, and there was that certificate flaunted right before their eyes, so of course the wedding couldn't be kept a secret any longer. But I noticed that all the members were a little more careful about voting street car transfers and private correspondence after that."

VENEZUELA BEGINS FETES.

Celebration of Centenary of Iindependence is Inaugurated.

Caracas, July 3.—Centennial Week, in which the principal celebration in connection with the centenary of Venezuela's independence will be held, has been inaugurated. After the singing of the Te Deum in the Metropolitan church, a civic parade was held to the National Pantheon, where the President deposited a wreath at Bolivar's tomb.

The opening sesion of the first Bolivar Memorial Congress was held. It was attended by delegates from Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Bolivia and Venezuela. The object of the congress is to bring a closer political union to insure the perpetuation of the independence of these republics.

STRENGTH OF THE NEW-BORN

Muscles of the Forearm Especially Seem to Be Powerful, Says a London Periodical.

The myth of the infant Hercules, who strangled two serpents in his cradle, may not have been a myth at all, but a fact, says the London Telegraph. Modern science has proved that it is quite a possible feat. The new-born babe is relatively much stronger than a full-grown man, according to the result of medical tests: "The muscles of the forearm are surprisingly vigorous. A few hours after birth a baby suspended by its finger to a stick, or to the finger of a person, can hold itself in the air for ten seconds, and, in the case of particularly strong infants, for as long as half a minute. At four days old the child's strength has increased, and the time is two and a half minutes for 98 per cent. of babies. The maximum is attained at a fortnight. Few infants can hang on for more than one and a half minutes, though one exceptional young Hercules remained suspended for two minutes and 38 seconds by his right hand. After that he still hung on with his left for 15 seconds longer." It is not stated whose babies were put through these horizontal bar gymnastics at the early age of from one hour to a fortnight.

Scientific Management.

Broadly speaking, scientific management is simply the expert sudy of details and the application of intelligent methods to save unnecessary labor, coupled with an incentive to the workman to interest himself. If it be found that in common practice the bricklayer makes eight motions in setting a brick and lays 120 bricks per hour, whereas the same thing can be done equally well by three motions and the result be an increase to 350 in the number of bricks paid per hour, the economic benefit is self-evident. Such has been actually effected. Even in the lowest kind of manual labor, such as the moving of pigiron, it has been found possible to triple, and even to quadruple, the accomplishment per man. These are not theoretical estimates. They are actual results.

On Ice.

"Yes," said Alkali Ike, "a couple of cow punchers indulged in a very pretty scientific scrap down at Bad Bucke's yesterday."

"It is wonderful how cool those fellows keep under the circumstances," remarked the eastern tourist.

"Yaas, they certainly have to be ketp cool, stranger. I believe for some reason or other, their funerals ain't to be for a couple o' days yet."

WILD ORGIES IN NEW GUINEA

Intoxicated Natives, on Periodical "Sprees," Indulge In Fierce Fights Among Themselves.

Of the unpleasant drinking customs of certain nations in New Guinea, Walter Goodfellow writes: "We did not find the people down by the coast nearly so tractable or companionable as those at the headwaters of the river. They were also much more quarrelsome among themselves. They tap a species of sugar palm up the river and make fermented drink out of it. On this they get fearfully intoxicated and wild orgies take place all day. Parties of them would go off in canoes and sit under the palms from which the drink was obtained. In the morning they would return extremely drunk, and fights used to be the result.

"Sometimes these fights lasted for two days at a time. In our vicinity they more often than not took place at night. The natives then made such an indescribable din with their howling and their noises that we could not sleep at our base camp. Spears and showers of arrows were discharged in all directions and one could hear the sound of their axes dealing blows on the bodies of the combatants.

"After a time the women would join in the fray and their shrill voices added to the babel, making the noise greater than ever. When they became involved in the fights they seemed to be worse than the men. The cries were not like sounds emitted by human beings, but rather like the cries of animals."

All Wore Squeaky Shoes.

Squeaky shoes were once the proper thing, especially in the country, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. They gave distinction to rustic swains at the engine company's dance and made the sober-sided devout turn their bonneted heads in church to see who was coming up the aisle. They gave timely warning of the schoolmaster's approach and signaled to the postmistress that some one had called for the mail. The justice of the peace invariably wore double soles, which squeaked loudly with authority. The parson in prunella gaiters stepped lightly to a sound like that which comes from a mouse in a closet. But everybody wore squeaky shoes and boots. They came that way. The reason a shoe squeaks is because of the movement of one tanned sole against another. A peg driven into the center of the sole will stop the squeak, although the shoemaker's method is to place a layer of thin cloth or paper between the soles before they are sewn.

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Rather Rough on the Neighbors.

Many brain workers find at times a distinct need for some violent frolic or escape to relieve their pent-up feelings and overstrained nerves.

One such man has a preference for banging door; another for playing the "Dead March in Saul" with one finger; a third, after a heavy day's work, will go round the neighborhood ringing door bells; whilst a fourth, to steady his nerves, will dash a teacup against a wall.

It seems an idiotic thing to slap a cabman's face to relieve one's feelings, yet this is what a well-known actor does; and he does it in such a gentlemanly fashion, and pays so liberally, that the driver seldom takes offense.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., July 3.—News and developments over Sunday were of rather a bearish character. The political atmosphere in Europe seems disturbed over the seamen's strike in England and the Morocco question. There was some precipitation over Sunday on the west.

All combined explain the poor Liverpool this morning which was about six lower than due on new crops. Spots six lower, sales 8,000. The map shows cloudy weather in Texas, fair in Oklahoma, cloudy incentral and eastern States except fair in South Carolina. Some light precipitation in the northwest and eastern part of Texas, but no general rains. Indications point to unsettled, showery and cooler weather in the northwestern quarter of the belt and cloudy with prospects of more precipitation in Southern half of Texas.

The market opened six to lower lower but held around 13c. for new crops up to the publication of the bureau which gave the average condition of the cotton belt on June 25th at 88.2 compared with 87.8 on May 25th, with 80.7 on June 25th last year, 74.6 in 1909, and a ten year average of 80. The bureau was not quite as high as expected and the market improved a little, October selling to 13.14 on the first impulse. On second consideration this June condition is 8.2 points above the ten year average and together with the large acreage represents large prospects. Much will depend on weather developments in the western States this week. Should present indications for more general rains materialize the crop prospects all round would indeed sustain the hope of a large crop. All depends on rain in theWest.

Rains in Texas.

New Orleans, July 3.—The Times-Democrat has an item from Houston, Texas, saying:

"Intermittent showers were reported today in the country between Houston and Austin, while good rainfall was had in Houston and the adjacent territory. The showers in the cotton growing sections between southeast and central Texas, while relieving the heat to some extent, were not heavy enough to aid growing crops to any great degree, but cotton is not believed to be suffering."

San Antonio, Texas says:

"Light showers are reported to have fallen today throughout southwest Texas. The rain, however, was only sufficient to lay the dust and cool the atmosphere. The sky is overcast tonight and farmers are hoping for more rain.

Big Crowds At Davis White Sulphur Springs.

Hiddenite, N. C., July 3.—The season at the Davis White Sulphur Springs is on, having averaged over one hundred guests since the 15th and with a different attraction the crowd seems to keep busy. The skating rink and the bowling alley lead, while many play tennis, croquet, or go riding in the boats, others stroll up lover's lane, or fern mountain and enjoy more private conversation. The crowd of children had a candy hunt on the ground last week, enjoyed by the old folks as well as by the children. The orchestra is a great help to entertain the gusts as they play one hour just before and during each meal, and at night in the skating rink. Many are coming and going every day. So the crowd is ever new.

Fear the Greeks.

A nation invites bankruptcy, so we are told, if it issues fiat money; but the United States issues bonds and the banks buy them and the latter issue perfectly good money against their purchases. This is not fiat money according to the experts. It is difficult for the layman in finance to determine the difference, still there must be, for the authorities say so.

The Aldrich plan of currency reform goes the old system one better and permits among other things note issues based on assets. These assets are largely notes and other evidences of debt; but such cannot be fiat money, for Mr. President Taft proclaims the currency adjustment scheme as one of the most important and necessary measures now before the people.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding and howsoever the public cannot well be blamed for timidity.

Old Dr. Aldrich may be an excellent physician but the American public finds it difficult to forget that during his sojourn in that select hospital known as the Senate of the United States his principal if not sole patients were trust magnates, and they are apt to doubt his ability to diagnose popular ailments and prescribe proper remedies.

The trust investigations now being pursued by various House committees will have subserved one purpose if they fail in all else: They have shown the tremendous power of concentrated wealth.

The greatest of all the trusts is the Money Trust.

All powerful is Mammon and Morgan is his prophet.

The currency of the United States may be inelastic and a breeder of panics, still the American public has a fair excuse for believing that one of the most distressing of the panics was indirectly produced by the benevolent despot who presides over the monetary destiny of the nation.

The public has been told that a man who is not an authority on railroads, either constructive or operative, controls, nevertheless, the transportation business of the country; and the public knows that this same man was the dominant spirit in the settlement of the Northern Pacific corner.

The public has learned that the steel trust, which this amateur steel maker organized, was enabled to enlarge its field and absorb a rival through pressure on a trust company which was exerted by this man who was not a trust company official.

The public has become acquainted with the fact that this protean genius can make or mar industrial enterprises of no matter what magnitude, can promote or cripple railways and steamer lines—in fact, can do what he pleases with the prosperity of any combination, merely through the use of banking credit in which he is supreme.

Almost omnipotent is the prophet of Mammon.

And the prophet, through his disciples, has set the seal of approval on the Aldrich plan. That was to have been expected; and it is equally as reasonable for the plain people to view the whole affair with suspicion, notwithstanding the exuberant support of the ebullient President, who sees in every thing he advocates the sum of human wisdom, and who is willing to advocate anything that his friends strongly urge.

It is not easy to analyze currency problems. They present so many and such confusing angles of incidence and reflection that the casual student is baffled; but it is fairly demonstrable that more than a Presidential recommendation is needed to convince the people of the altruism of Aldrich and Morgan.

In relation to this topic it is well also to recall that Taft signed, though he later reprobated, the Aldrich-Payne tariff law; and the Aldrich of one measure is the Aldrich of the other.

Unless a miracle greater than any recorded could have happened during the past two years, the former Senator from Rhode Island is unlikely to initiate any legislation unfavorable to those whose invaluable agent he was, while drawing pay for representing to the best of his ability the interests of all the people of these United States.—Norfolk Landmark.

TRAINING IN GOOD MANNERS

Begin When Boy Is Young, and Politeness Is Bound to Become Second Nature.

Long before I had any sons of my own I made up my mind that, if I ever had the training of a boy, I should begin, as soon as he could understand anything, to teach him the small things that constitute good manners. So many boys I have known, and men, too, who at heart are good and kind and really refined, yet lack so large a part of the little courtesies that it is hard to believe they have been well brought up. In most cases it is the fault of the mother. She feels that it is much more important to form the character of a little boy, that his manners can wait till he is older. The result is that one sees boys and men who rarely forget to be polite outside of their homes, and yet seem to think it unnecessary to treat their own mother in the same way.

My view is that there is no need to neglect the character because you pay attention to the manners. I think I have succeeded. As soon as my first little boy wore trousers I taught him tha he must take off his hat as soon as he came into the house or when a lady spoke to him in the street. That he must rise from his chair when I came at the dining table, must never walk out of the room before a lady, and all the other little polite ways we like to see in men. It has never been any trouble to keep him up to these things; he learned so young that it soon became second nature.—Harper's Bazar.

"There's a belief that summer girls are always fickle."

"Yes, I got engaged on that theory, but it looks as if I'm in for a wedding or a breach of promise suit."—Kansas City Journal.

"Who says there are no women humorists?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"My type writer spells as funny as Artemus Ward in his palmiest days."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CONSIDERATE MISS MABEL

She Returned Umbrella in Rainstorm, but Had to Borrow It to Get Home.

"They man say what they please about Mabel Walloper," old Mrs. Jimmerson said, as she poured out her husband's tea the other night, while the rain fell in torrents outside. "She may be frivolous, but all the same she is a considerate woman—mighty considerate. I don't know another woman who would do what she did today."

"What did she do today?" asked Jimmerson, who had his own opinions as to the lady's good points.

"Why, when this perfect deluge of a rain started in this afternoon she remembered that the last time she was here at our meeting of the Browning club she had borrowed our umbrella," Mrs. Jimmerson said, enthusiastically, "and, without hesitating a minute, she put on her hat and waterproof coat and came all the way over here in that raging storm to return it. I think that was mighty thoughtful and nice of her. Don't you?"

"I certainly do," said Jimmerson. "I shouldn't have thought it of her."

"I guess you've done her an injustice," said Mrs. Jimmerson, "but hereafter I shall know better. I don't think I should have ventured out on a day like this on such an errand."

"Well, I'm mighty glad she did it," said Jimmerson. "Mighty glad. I've got to go back to the store for a little while this evening, and that bumbershoot will come in handy."

Mrs. Jimmerson's face flushed, and she coughed in an embarrassed way.

"Why, Tom, I'm sorry, but you can't have it, dear," she said.

"Why not?" Jimmerson demanded.

"Why," said Mrs. Jimmerson, "it was raining so hard that I had to lend it to Mabel again to go home with. I couldn't do anything else after she had been so thoughtful as to bring it back."—John Kendrick Bangs in Lippincott's.

Some Queer Brushes.

The cat carries her clothes brush in her mouth, for with her rough tongue she cleanses her glossy coat as a boy brushes off his clothes. She licks one of her front paws and rubs it over her face, and she is ready for her breakfast.

Foxes, dogs and wolves do not use their mouths when they need to wash and brush, but scratch themselves vigorously with their hind paws and are as fresh as ever.

The cow, with her long, rough tongue, combs her coat of hair until it is clean and curly. The horse, more than any other animal, depends on his owner to keep his coat in proper condition, but often he will roll on the green grass or rub himself down against a tree or fence.

Field mice comb their hair with their hind legs, and the fur seal in a similar manner spends as much time as a woman in making herself look smart.

Although the elephant appears to be thick skinned and callous, he takes great care of his skin. He often gives himself a shower bath by drawing water into his long trunk and blowing it on the different parts of his body. After the bath he sometimes rolls himself in a toilet preparation of dust to keep off the flies.

The Only English Pope.

Viterbo, now engaged in establishing a record in criminal trials, was the scene of the greatest triumph of our only English pope, Nicholas Breakspeare. One of the 17 churches of this ancient Italian city is St. Lorenzo, and here Frederick Barbarossa himself bowed the knee and held the stirrup to the mighty pontiff Adrain IV., who came, a poor lad, from the meadows of Hertfordshire, to give away the kingdoms of the world. In the period of its splendor Viterbo, "city of beautiful fountains and beautiful maidens," held many handsome palaces, in one of which in the thirteenth century six papal elections took place. But for Englishmen the city will always remain the city of the English pope who tamed a haughty emperor and was himself choked by a fly.—London Chronicle.

Struck the Wrong Man.

To Jacob Hope, a Philadelphia bird and animal expert, an odd adventure happened the other day. Mr. Hope was strolling out Walnut street when a bird faker accosted him. The faker drew from his pocket the usual painted sparrow—a gorgeous thing of blues and golds and greens—and, evidently taking Mr. Hope for one of the millionaires of Rittenhouse square, he said: "I jest nabbed this bird off that there walnut tree. Can't I sell her to ye cheap? Look at her—ain't she a beauty? I never seen nothin' like her before. What kind of a bird is she, do you know?" "Young man," said Mr. Hope, "if it's true that birds of a feather flock together, then I should say that, undoubtedly, she is a jailbird."

Tolstoi's Solution of Problem.

"The only reason for life is the universal desire for welfare which, in reasoning man, becomes expanded to a desire for universal welfare—in other words, to love. It (this universal desire for welfare) expands its limits naturally by love, first for one's family—one's wife and children—then for friends, then for one's fellow countrymen; but Love is not satisfied with this, and tends to embrace all!—Rose Strunsky, in the Atlantic.

NORTH STATE CAPITAL NEWS

Raleigh, N. C., July 3.—Dr. Jno. A. Ferrall, secretary in charge of the campaign in this state for the eradication of the hookworm disease, says that within the next week there will be opened in a number of the eastern counties of the state special dispensaries for the treatment of hookworm. There will be a physician and a laboratory man with each and the plan is to move these dispensaries from county to county as its usefulness in each locality seems to be served. The first counties to enjoy this special equipment will probably be Columbus, Robeson, Sampson and Halifax. It is expected that the locations of these dispensaries will be changed about every four or six weeks. The counties in which this work is done will have to bear a part of the expense.

Mrs. A. B. Willey, of Norfolk, died in Rex Hospital here this morning at 7:30 o'clock aged 81 years. She came to Raleigh ten days ago to visit her great-nephew, B. M. Parker and was taken ill soon after reaching here. She leaves a grandson, Paul Willey, of Great Bridge, Va. Her body is being embalmed with a view to awaiting a decision as to whether the interment shall be in Norfolk or in Gates county, this state, where her husband is buried. She was a native of Gates.

Capt. A. L. Doughtery, of the Thirtieth United States Infantry, reported for duty this morning to Adjutant General R. L. Leinster, of the North Carolina National Guard. He is to devote his entire time to co-operating with the adjutant general in attaining and maintaining the highest possible efficiency among the officers and the men of the North Carolina National Guard, and getting the general organization of the Guard on the most approved footing as to organization and system. He has a wife and three children whom he will bring to Raleigh to live later in the fall.

This morning there arrived in the home of Adjutant General R. L. Leinster a bouncing little boy to whom he and Mrs. Leinster gave the name of Joseph Armfield, in honor of the lamented Joseph Armfield, of Statesville, who was Gen. Leinster's predecessor in office.

The managers for the six farmers' institute parties that are to be in the field from July 24 to about August 26 under the direction of the state department of agriculture holding farmer's institutes in every section of the state are just made public. They are respectively Prof. C. L. Newman of the A. & M. College; T. J. W. Broom, assistant director of the institute work; Dr. S. L. Stevens, of the A. & M. College; J. L. Burgess, state agronomist; W. N. Hutt, state horticulturalist, and Franklin Sherman, state entomologist. There will also be institutes for the farmers' wives and daughters in connection with all six parties and the ladies to direct these are Mrs. F. L. Stevens, Mrs. W. N. Hutt, Raleigh; Mrs. Sue Hollowell, Goldsboro; Miss Minnie L. Jamison, Greensboro State Normal; Mrs. Chas. McKimmon and Mrs. C. R. Hudson, Raleigh. The party that Prof. Newman has charge of will make the points on the Southern Railway and the party with T. J. W. Broom in charge will hold the institutes in the Seaboard Air Line territory. Both will carry a couple of cars of special equipment for demonstration work and will have the special co-operation of the two railroad companies.

Mrs. Maxwell, mother of Secretary A. J. Maxwell, of the North Carolina Corporation Commission, died this morning in Goldsboro after a protracted illness. Mr. Maxwell had been with her since Saturday. She was eighty years old.

News from the bedside of Corporation Commissioner H. C. Brown is that there is no improvement and that he is alive is about all that can be said of his condition. His death is expected at any time. It develops that he has cancer of the stomach. It was May 20, last, that he began to feel unwell and then he merely sat about his home for a week expecting every day that the next he would be able to resume his official duties at the office. However, he grew worse and the local physicians were unable to determine just what the trouble was. He went to Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, for an examination and learned there the really serious condition he was in. The experts there told him he would be as well off at home as he would be in the hospital there. So he came back and has been growing steadily worse, suffering intensely much of the time when not under the influence of opiates.

There are being issued from the office of Commissioner M. L. Shipman of the department of labor and printing, the annual letters of inquiry to something like six thousand correspondents in every section of the state for reports from which the annual report of the department on the manufacturing, and general industrial status of the state, along with the trade unions, the agricultral interests are to be shown as to their status and development. The officers of the manufacturing plants are asked direct as to the affairs of each and the commissioner is urging that these officials respond promptly so that the department may be saved the expense of personal visitations which will have to be made to the plants that are not reported.

Dievert, another Frenchman, won the Dover prize for the speediest flight across the channel.

London was up early today to witness the arrival of the airmen from across the channel.

Only by making the cross channel flight under some extraordinary conditions will any aviator be able to make any glory. After today all flights will be considered an ordinary affair for 11 men flew across the channel today and lighted as easily as a flock of birds might have done.

Sumner Township Sunday School Convention at Groome's

The Sumner Township Sunday School Convention was held last Sunday at the Methodist Episcopal church, South, at Groome's. There was an average attendance of those interested in Sunday school work in the township, despite the fact that several other meetings of various kinds scheduled for the same date interferred to some extent with the size of the crowd.

Township Chairman A. O. Newman presided in the convention, and the morning hours were devoted to a song service, devotional exercises, an address of welcome by Cicero Groome, report of the last convention and reports from the schools represented, and short talks by several persons on Sunday school work. At the afternoon session, in addition to a song service, there was an address by J. T. Fain of Greensboro on the organized Sunday school work.

Sumner Township is well organized in the Sunday school cause, through the untiring efforts of Chairman A. O. Newman and his co-workers, and a convention is held quarterly in this township. The next convention will be held at Burnett's Chapel on the first Sunday in October.

Pension Board In Session Monday

The Guilford County Board of Pensions met yesterday in the office of J. W. Forbis, chairman ex-officio, and passed upon a number of applicants for pensions. Thirty-two were passed upon favorably. The board went over the old list and cut off the names of 16 persons who had died during the past year. There are two pensioners whose claims are to be investigated by the board at an adjourned meeting three weeks from yesterday. These have been receiving pensions, but their right to do so has been questioned and they will be given an opportunity to prove their claims, otherwise they will be cut off.

This evening at Lindley Park the Fourth of July festivities in Greensboro will come to a close. The Elks have made arrangements for one of the most elaborate dances of the season, this being in addition to the regular program of amusements under the direction of the Public Service Company. It is expected that from fifty to a hundred couples will be on the floor during the dancing hours, the Elks having sold an exceptionally large number of tickets for the occasion. Then the show on at the park is an attraction in itself, not to mention the other amusements. It is expected that a large number will visit the park during the evening and the Public Service Company has made arrangements to have special cars to accommodate its patrons. The last car will leave the park at 12 o'clock instead of 11:30 as usual.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED BY TRAIN AT JAMESTOWN

An unknown man, bearing the general appearance of being an Italian laborer, was discovered by a trackwalker about 8 o'clock Sunday morning lying on the Southern railroad about one mile east of Jamestown with a ragged hole in his side, it being evident that he was struck by a passing train. Life was not thought to be entirely extinct as warmth could be felt in the limbs, but all the efforts of the physician who was immediately summoned were futile, and the injured man never exhibited signs of consciousness. Every attempt of the railway authorities to identify the man were fruitless and he was buried on the Southern right-of-way at the scene of the accident shortly after the ghastly find was made.

The unfortunate victim was seen in the little village of Jamestown Saturday afternoon about 6 o'clock and at the time was staggering as if he was either very ill or drunk. He did not stop nor engage in conversation with the villagers but continued on his way down the railroad track. Nothing whatever is known of him in this vicinity and it is thought that he is a stranger to these parts.

The man was about 40 years of age, darkly tanned, and was rather poorly dressed. His identity as an Italian can hardly be questioned. He was found on the side of the track with a gaping wound in his left side. Dr. Gordan, of Jamestown, immediately rendered medical attention but life had probably become extinct a short while before the discovery. A search through the pockets of the ragged suit revealed no papers that might lead to identification and few other articles except 60 cents in small change. The railroad authorities of the village expended every possible effort to identify the man and give him expert medical attention. When all attempts failed the Huntley-Stockton-Hill undertaking establishment was summoned and given charge of the body. After being prepared for burial the railroad company had the remains buried in a grave dug beside the track on the spot where the accident occurred.

Executive Committee Laymen's Movement Met Yesterday

A very important meeting of the executive committee of the Laymen's Missionary Movement met yesterday afternoon in this city: C. H. Pratt, of Richmond, secretary of the Laymen Missionary Movement of the South; Dr. C. F. Reid, of Nashville, secretary of the Foreign Mission board of the M. E. Church, South; John McEachern, secretary of the movement in North Carolina, and Rev. H. K. Boyer, of Salisbury, will with the committee. The advancement of the layman's principle of missions engrossed the attention of the board.

At the suggestion of Mr. Pratt the committee adopted a plan for strengthening and centralizing the work of missions throughout the state. Each church in the congressional districts of the state are to appoint executive committees for advancing the cause of missions and the chairmen of these committees with headquarters in Greensboro will form a State executive committee With this arrangement the office of state secretary is created permanently and the work of the movement will then be properly financed and broadened to a considerable degree.

UNIVERSITY MEN OF GREENSBORO FORM ASSOCIATION

This evening at 8 o'clock in the Carnegie Library will be held a meeting of the Greensboro alumni of the University of North Carolina for the purpose of organizing a local association. It is earnestly desired that every alumnus of the University be present on this occasion.

W. H. Swift at a meeting of the alumni on May 29 was elected field secretary and assigned to the work of organizing an alumni association in every county in the State. The meeting tonight is the first yet held in pursuance with the instructions given Mr. Swift by the alumni council, Mr. Swift believing that he could meet with greater success in organizing the various counties, after the University men of his own county were thoroughly organized. Two associations will be organized, one in Greensboro and one in High Point.

Inasmuch as the success of the field secretary in organizing the other counties in the State depends upon the enthusiasm shown in Guilford county it devolves on every University man in the county to become a member of the association in Greensboro or in High Point. Mr. Swift requests The Telegram to urge all alumnus to attend the meeting tonight and give to his work the impetus so necessary to success.

TIM HURST TELLS OF HARDEST DECISION HE EVER MADE.

I asked Tim Hurst what was the closest and hardest decision he ever made. "It was in Baltimore," he said. "McGraw was on first, Jennings on second and Stenzel at the bat. They started a double steal. Jennings as he passed Long hit him, and Long tripped him, after which Jennings went on and jumped into Collins. Tenney tried to hold McGraw, but he broke away, reached second and kicked the ball out of Lowe's hands. Stenzel swung his bat and hit Robinson on the hand, trying to keep him from throwing. Robby tripped me and poked me in the back to keep me from seeing, and Stenzel spiked my foot."

"How did you decide it?" I inquired.

"I called it a foul ball, sent the runners back and kicked Stenzel on the shins," said Tim. —Hugh Fullerton in June American.

COULON TO FIGHT ABROAD.

Bantamweight Champion Will Go to England to Exhibit His Skill.

As soon as Johnny Coulon, the bantamweight champion, has turned the majority of the fight emporiums in this country upside down and shaken all the shekels that he can into his capacious coffers and his given all the aspiring youths a chance to exchange punches with him he will quit this country for the time being and continue his get-rich-quick search on the other side.

His father-manager has announced that he will take Johnny to Europe when things begin to slow up here and during the "off" season will grab some of the European currency. He says that the fight followers in England are anxious to see the little fellow in action.

The trip to Europe has a twofold purpose. Money is not the only object. "Pop" Coulon has conceived the idea that Johnny may pick up five or six pounds while on the ocean and when he returns to his native heath again be heavy enough to challenge Abe Attell for the featherweight championship.

Pitcher Nagle a Nervy Youngster.

"Of all the funny youngsters breaking into the game this fellow Nagle of the Pirates is the best of the lot," says Sherwood Magee. "We handed him an awful lacing, something he was not used to, but it never feazed him. Some youngsters had they got a beating like that would have been downhearted and discouraged, but not this kid. When Clarke took him out, after we had scored six runs, he came over to the clubhouse door with a grin all over his face and said, 'Gee, but didn't I get a swell lacing!' I believe all pitchers would be better off if they felt that way about a reverse."

Vanderbilt's Horses Capturing Stakes.

W. K. Vanderbilt's horses are winning the lion's share of rich French turf prizes. A glance at continental racing cards shows that American jockeys have most of the mounts. Yankee trainers condition the equines.

BASEBALL POINTERS

Schmidt, Detroit's catcher, is permanently incapacitated from playing ball because of an injury to his arm received in a prizefight last fall.

In Ray Miller the Boston Nationals have one of the best hitters in the National league. He is punishing the pitchers for a .400 batting average.

Manager Clarke of Pittsburg would amend the baseball rules so players could coach their own batters from the bench. He wants to "encourage" his men.

Dode Criss, the St. Louis pitcher, is the only player in baseball who earns his salary as a pinch hitter. As emergency batter he outclasses every other player in the big league

MEL SHEPPARD TO RACE ABROAD

Great Middle Distance Star Wants to Beat Best In England.

GISSING MAY ALSO TAKE TRIP

With Men In Good Shape They Should Show Their Heels to Foreigners. Hans Holmer to Run In Number of Races—Queal May Journey Abroad.

The other side of the pond seems to have a great attraction for several of our athletes. Not satisfied with cleaning up in this country, they are anxious to go abroad and add more scalps to their belts. At least six of America's best amateurs and professionals will be competing abroad this summer.

Mel W. Sheppard, the world's greatest amateur middle distance runner, has mapped out a strenuous campaign for the year and is hopeful of adding a number of new records to his already long list.

If his plans go through Sheppard intends to sail for Scotland July 5 and return Aug. 15. The Scots hold three sets of games during the middle of July and the first part of August. They have invited athletes from all over the world to try for the prizes. The only other American besides Sheppard who will probably compete in that country is Harry Gissing.

Sheppard will try for the prizes in the half mile events. He believes that if he is in old time shape he ought to have no trouble in breezing home a winner in each.

After the Olympic games in 1908, instead of coming home with the rest of the bunch, Shep stole over to Scotland and won a number of races.

Ever since the Scots have been at Shep to compete again in their games.

There is no doubt that America's reputation for producing the greatest short distance athletes will be made plainer with Sheppard and Gissing matching their speed against the best of Europe in the Scotland tournament. Over there they don't think we really have the very best, but when they see Mel crossing the tape ahead of their champions they will have a better opinion of us.

Tex Ramsdell, the crack sprinter of the University of Pennsylvania, is thinking seriously of making another visit to England to compete in a number of events. Tex showed his heels to a number of Englishmen while abroad last summer. The Penn star may be accompanied by Gwyn Henry, the Texas speed marvel.

The professional runners will also have their innings abroad. If plans do not fail several American distance men will journey abroad in search of the loose currency that is supposed to be lying around over there. Hans Holmer will run several match races with the best runners to be procured. One of his first races will be with several fast men at the full Marathon distance, the race taking place on the Isle of Man the last week in June. In this race Bouchard, the Frenchman, will be Holmer's chief opponent.

Holmer has arranged for a couple of races in France and Germany. The Germans are at fever heat over foot running, over 1,400 amateurs turning out for one cross country run. Bill Queal, the greatest of all professional distance runners, is also thinking of taking a trip abroad. Bill has received several offers from the promoters on the other side of the Atlantic to meet their stars, and it is more than likely he will accept.

PRONOUNCE NAME LIKE "LAH-FEET."

The name of Lafitte, the Detroit Americans' good young right hander, is pronounced in three or four different ways. Few give the cognomen the correct pronunciation. The owner of the name says it is pronounced, or, rather, should be pronounced, as though it were spelled "Lah-feet."

WHY CHAMPION MILER JONES TOOK UP ATHLETICS

Doctor Told Man Who Recently Made New World's Record He Hadn't Long to Live.

Another John Paul Jones has writ his name in letters of gold on history's pages—John Paul Jones, student and athlete of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

The Jones of today has proved himself the premier mile runner of the world, and his name has become a household word wherever the great American press has entry.

John Paul Jones is a mere youth, just turned twenty years. He weighs

JOHN PAUL JONES, CORNELL'S WONDERFUL RUNNER.

145 pounds. It is not so many years ago that his family physician in Washington, his home town, looked at him sorrowfully, felt his pulse, tested his lungs and shook his head hopelessly. "He hasn't many months of life," was the doctor's verdict. An athletic course of treatment was suggested, and this peerless athlete of today bears little resemblance to the stooped over, hollow cheek weakling of a short time ago.

At home he was always an excellent student. He prepared for college at Exeter, where he established an enviable reputation as a middle distance runner. Despite the fact that both the Harvard and Yale scouts had their weather eye out for the lad, he headed for the university on the shores of Lake Cayuga.

He has been entered in three intercollegiate contests this season and has won the mile in each affair.

In the big meet at Cambridge recently Jones established a new amateur world's record for the mile. His time was 4 minutes 15 2-5 seconds, a fifth of a second faster than that made by Tom Conneff at Travers Island, New York, in August of 1895. When Conneff ran the mile in 4 minutes 15 3-5 seconds he ran his first half in 2 minutes 8 seconds flat. The speed of Jones can best be appreciated when it is realized that he ran the last 440 yards of his mile in 60 1-5 seconds. The professional record for a mile is 4 minutes 12¾ seconds, made by W. G. George in England over five years ago.

Jones is the only man in the world today that looms up as having a possible chance to lower this professional record. After doing his record breaking mile stunt recently the Ithacan admitted that he felt very tired, and his half mile epoch making victory which followed was truly remarkable.

HE TACKLED THE WRONG MAN

"Confidence" Worker Made Mistake in Seeking to Entrap an Experienced Traveler.

A tourist who has recently returned from America gives a description of his meeting with a "confidence trick" man in New York, says London Opinion.

He writes: Sunning myself at the hotel entrance, a gentleman with jewelry came up with outstretched hand

"Ah! How are you, colonel?" he said, with effusive geniality. "You remember me on board ship?"

I knew him by instinct for the "confidence man" who prowls around to entrap the stranger, and had rehearsed in my own mind a little comedy for his benefit.

"Remember you? Rather," I said, wringing his paw with force. "And I take this as very good of you. You've come to pay me back that $5, I guess?"

The fellow's face was a study.

"I—I think you're mistaken," he gasped.

"Dunno 'bout that," I replied, "but there's evidently a mistake somewhere."

Tableaux—Two men gazing at each other, each with head cocked slightly on one side and left eye half closed. Pause; succeeded by a broad grin on each countenance. "Confidence man" turns right about face, and without a word walks rapidly across the street. I need scarcely say that he never set eyes on me before, nor I on him; and he retired, I fancy, thinking I was in the same business as himself.

How the Caucus Originated.

This day learned that the Caucus club meets at certain times in the garret of Tom Dawes, the adjutant of the Boston regiment. He has a large house and he has a movable partition in the garret which he takes down and the whole club meets in one room. There they smoke tobacco until you cannot see from one end of the garret to the other. There they drink flip, I suppose, and they choose a moderator who puts questions to the vote regularly; and selectmen, assessors, collectors, fire-wards and representatives are regularly chosen before they are chosen in the town.—From John Adams' Journal.

Mysterious Disappearance.

A girl had gone to a dinner in New York with her steady. The young man noticed a speck of what appeared to be lint on her shoulder. When she wasn't looking he attempted to knock it off with his finger. After several futile attempts he took hold of the line and started to pull it off. He unraveled several yards of the fleecy stuff and when he seemed to have all of it threw the wad under the table. That night the girl told her mother that she had had a perfectly lovely time. "But," she added, "I have just been lying here in bed, mother, and wondering what became of my union suit."

VIRTUES OF THE PINEAPPLE

Veritable Medicine Is This Delicious Fruit When Fresh—Its Value as a Digestive.

Fresh pineapple juice has great value as a digestive. A small amount will digest a considerable piece of steak or any other animal tissue. Boiling, however, seems to kill the enzymes in the pineapple, so that after canning it loses its digestive power.

The peculiar property of pineapple juice makes it of value in many ways. For instance, in diphtheria it is used as a gargle, and the diphtheria membrane disappears like magic at its touch. It seems to have the power of picking out all non-living animal tissues and rapidly digesting them, leaving all the living tissues. In cases of quinsy, pineapple juice digests all poisonous tissue, often giving quick relief.

Sometimes it is not best to incise or lance a boil, and the yellow cap may often remain upon the boil without opening, holding back the pus. The application of pineapple juice invariably establishes free drainage within a short time.

For administration in the stomach, pineapple acts, adds the Family Doctor, as a preventive rather than a cure. It cannot quickly correct an acute attack of indigestion, though it may prevent an attack.

Modern Slang Classical.

Canon Horsley's point that "real old slang or cant is the conservator of not a few Saxon words, was illustrated at some length by Hotten, who quoted from Latham the dictum that "the thieves of London are the conservators of Anglo-Saxonisms.' Hotten notes that "dodge" is from the Anglo-Saxon, and "gadding" for roaming appears in an old translation of the Bible. To call a thing "crack" in the sense of excellent, was not a vulgarism in Henry VIII.'s time, and ancient nobles used to "get their dander up," before appealing to their swords. At some time "to bone" was quite respectable English for "to steal," a clergyman interrupted at Paul's Cross would bid the disorderly person "hold his gab," and "gallavanting" and "flabbergasted" were equally reputable.

He Made an Army.

A noteworthy example of patience in small things is to be seen in the recent acquisition of the Invalides of some eight thousand litle soldiers made of cardboard and mounted on little wooden stands, says the London Globe. It is the work of M. Paul Schmidt, a Strasburger, and represents the troops stationed in the famous cathedral city in 1848. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, voltigeurs, zouaves and barracks firemen are represented, and these had taken part in the conquest of Algiers. For the most part, at any rate as far as the officers are concerned, the faces are true portraits and at the back of each figure the name and rank of the party is to be found.

ADVERTISING PAYS IN GREENSBORO

As it Does Everywhere Else When Done Properly. Wallace Clothing Co. Enjoying Best Trade of Their History.

Newspaper advertising backed up with the goods always pays. It pays in Greensboro and it pays everywhere else. The Wallace Clothing Co. has been conducting for the past week their regular semi-annual clearance sale. They have used large newspaper advertisements, pages and half pages, and they have gotten results. Mr. W. H. Wallace, the Manager of the local store, said to a representative of The Greensboro Telegram yesterday, that his business Saturday and Monday was the largest for this season of the year that his firm had ever enjoyed. Mr. Wallace attributes his good business to the fact that he is giving extraordinary bargains—all of his stock is on sale at from twenty-five to fifty per cent. reduction off the regular prices—and to the fact that he has been liberally advertising these bargains. Mr. Wallace's experience is only the experience of all other merchants who advertise judiciously and who back up their advertisements with the goods.

ARREST JUSTICE BLANCHARD.

Connecticut Officers, However, Are Compelled to Let Him Go.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 3.—Justice Blanchard, of the New York City Supreme Court, and his chauffeur were arrested as the justice's car, in which was Mrs. Blanchard, entered the city from the direction of New York City. At police headquarters the charge was made of excessive speed and violating the law prohibiting open mufflers.

The New York jurist pleaded ignorance of the laws on the subject in this State; also that he had received no warning. Mayor Buckingham was called into consultation with Chief of Police Birmingham, and it was decided to release the prisoner with the warning that Justice Blanchard had claimed as a right. The party then proceeded toward their destination in Middletown.

MORAN-WOLGAST LIGHT-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLE

Will Be Pulled Off Today In San Francisco—Both Men Are Confident Of Winning and Betting Is a Standoff.

Special to Telegram.

San Francisco, July 3.—The Moran-Wolgast clash at Jim Coffroth's arena tomorrow will be the first bona fide battle for the lightweight championship since the title holder sent Battling Nelson into oblivion over a year ago. With Moran out of the way, the little Dutchman from Milwaukee can claim a clear slate. And if Moran wins, there can be no disputing his right to the lightweight crown.

Both men are fit and full of confidence. "This is a sure thing," said Wolgast today. "Moran is not half so strong as he is being rated, and I'll win from him a whole lot easier than I did from Burns."

The Britisher was a spectator at that battle and saw young Frankie Burns take the count under the impact of the Milwaukeean's bunch of fives. Moran's sole reason for being there was that he wanted to get a line on Wolgast's present form. "I will be the champion before the sun sets tomorrow," he said today. "I have analyzed Wolgast's style and will make it hot for him from the start. I will wear him down with body punches and will drop him in about the fifth round, if not sooner. I never felt better in my life."

Moran went through a brief but fast workout at his quarters in San Rafael today. He looked the perfect boxer and his physical trim could not be better. He is neither untrained nor overtrained; the line is drawn just right. He carries no fat on his square, rugged frame, and when he moves he steps about as lightly as a cat. He doesn't believe in too much training, but keeps himself, as he expressed it, "feeling fit" between fights. Tiv Kreling, who has been training Moran, declared his belief in his charge today, and opined that it would be "easy money."

Judging from the mental attitude of the rival lightweights, a great scrap is due tomorrow, as both have proved themselves to be game to the core and not afraid to carry the fight to the enemy. Wolgast is the more rough-and-ready of the two, but it is certain that Moran is the more finished in the art of hit and get away.

The men will stack up at about the same size, weight and build when they enter the ring tomorrow—both built well down toward the ground, with their strength in their shoulders. Plenty of speed and ability to assimilate punishment, are qualities possessed by both. Moran probably has the stronger wallop, but this is offset by Wolgast's endurance his almost unlimited stamina. The man who out-Nelsoned Nelson, he is probably the best of the little fellows over a long route. The fight will be decided inside fifteen rounds. If Wolgast faces Moran in the fifteenth, with the fighting even up to that point, the little Dutchman is almost certain to come out on top, but Moran's cleverness, combined with his punching power—the wallop that put the Battler into has-been land—may end it before then or may have his adversary to pieces. It looks like a toss-up.

A record crowd is looked for tomorrow to see these little gladiators go to it.

Fight fans have come all the way across the country for the battle, among them some of the best known sporting men of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. The odds are even and much money has been placed on the result.

DRIVEN TO SUICIDE BY HEAT.

Old Man Blows Out His Brains After Threatening His Three Sons.

New York, July 3.—As Mrs. Carl Schmidt, of 1637 Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, was preparing supper she heard a shot in the parlor and, running in, found her husband, a retired merchant tailor, seventy-four years of age, lying on the floor with a bullet wound in his left temple. He was clasping a revolver. Dr. Preston, from the Lincoln Hospital, said Schmidt was dead.

Robert Schmidt, his son, told the police that his father had nothing to worry him. The heat, he believed, had affected his father's mind. His father had been irritable, he said, and on Friday had purchased a revolver and threatened to shoot his three sons, but they overpowered him and wrested the revolver from him.

It is supposed that he had gone out and bought another one and committed suicide.

"I suppose," said the city man, "there are some queer characters around an old village like this."

"You'll find a good many," admitted the native, "when the hotels fill up."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ALAS! THE POOR DUCHESS

She Thought Wealthy Couple Were Making Sport of Her Wedding Present.

Recently, when the wealthy Mlle. de R. was to be married, one of our good duchesses had to make her a present, just a little present. The duchess thought it would be useless to expend much money for a person so rich. She thought if she would look through her vast mansion she would be able to find something, some trinket, to which the addition of her card would give sufficient glory. She finally found in her writing desk an insignificant cameo that she had once worn.

The following day she received from her young friend a letter of enthusiastic thanks: "Oh, you have been very foolish! This is too, too beautiful," etc.

"She is making sport of my little present," thought the good duchess.

Then came a second letter, this time from the husband who was to be: "How can we thank you? We are delighted. This will spoil us."

"The impertinent fellow," said the duchess, "he wants me to understand that I have been niggardly."

Nevertheless she went to pay a visit to the R.'s before the marriage. There in the midst of the presents, exposed in a most prominent place, she saw the little cameo placed upon her card. An old gentleman approached her. He was a member of the Academy of Inscriptions and Belleslettres.

"What a wonderful present you have given these children, Madame la duchess," he said. For forty years we have been seeking for this very cameo. It is of the era of Trojan, and this trinket is valued at two hundred thousand francs."

Ah, the poor duchess.—Le Cri de Paris.

MRS. HILL WAS MURDERED WAS VERDICT OF JURY

Verdict in Jamestown Case By Coroner's Jury Filed Yesterday With Commissioners—Regular Session Of Commissioners Adjourned For The Fourth.

Coroner W. W. Wood yesterday filed with the County Commissioners the verdict of the jury empaneled to inquire into the cause of the death of Mrs. Ida Hill, at Jamestown, on June 8. The verdict of the jury was as follows:

"We the undersigned jurors summoned and empaneled this day by W. W. Wood, coroner of Guilford county, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mrs. Ida Hill, of Lexington, N. C., which occurred at Jamestown, N. C., on the night of June 7, or morning of June 8, in the home of her mother, Mrs. Emily J. Ragsdale, being duly sworn and having viewed the dead body of the deceased, and after examining the evidence and circumstances available and brought before us, find that the death of the deceased was unlawfully caused by means of strangulation, but by whose act we are unable to ascertain."

The County Commissioners met yesterday in regular monthly session, the major portion of the day being taken up with auditing accounts and approving bills. Bills amounting to several thousand dollars were ordered paid by the board. Today being a holiday no session of the board will be held, the commissioners meeting Wednesday to consider road matters.

At yesterday's session an appropriation of $100 each was made to the military companies at Greensboro and High Point. The High Point company has previously been allowed $50 and this amount was included in the appropriation for that company.

The board advanced the sum of $105 to the County Board of Health to purchase stereopticon slides and a lantern to be used in advancing the health interests of the county. This sum is to be refunded later by the health board.

Cleaning the Inside of Shoes.

It is possible to clean the inside of shoes thoroughly, and the process will appeal to neat women.

Take an old tooth brush which has been thoroughly cleansed with hot water and washing soda—or a new brush, for that matter—wet very slightly, soap it enough to make light suds, and with it carefully rub and clean the inside of your shoes. It is not necessary to get them very wet. The chemical action of the soap does the work. Let the suds remain a few minutes, then rinse with the brush in the same way, put the shoes on ventilated shoetrees to dry in the air, and they will be as fresh as a new pair.—Harper's Bazaar.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

EDUCATION BY RAILROADS.

Fifty-two of Them Have Operated Agricultural Instruction Trains.

Washington, July 3.—Fifty-two of the leading railroads of the United States operated agricultural instruction trains for the benefit of farmers along their routes, using 239 cars and spending more than $90,000 in the service, during the twelve months ended June 30, 1911, according to a report just made to the Secretary of Agriculture by John Hamilton, farmers' institute specialist.

It is estimated that 379,200 people attended the institutes conducted on the trains, which traversed altogether 40,771 miles of track and made 1,793 stops ranging from forty minutes to two days each.

Mr. Hamilton reports that many of the transportation companies are coming to appreciate agriculture as a source of income, and are giving special attention to its development.

TWINS WON AGAIN; THE SCORE 7 TO 5

Winston-Salem, July 3.—Both Swindell and Eldridge were hit freely in this afternoon's game, but the Twins hit more opportunely and won 7 to 5. The scoring began early, both teams making two runs in the first frame. With the second inning the Twins took the lead and kept it thereafter. The game was interrupted by showers and was slow, but there was a good bit of fancy fielding.

Fuller made a great stop of a hard bounder with his bare hand, robbing Schumaker of a safety. Eldridge and Stuart each made a pretty assist. Clemens made a beautiful catch of a drive over short. Gates got three assists, all of which were hard chances, and turned a double into a single with apretty stop of one behind the bag. The hitting was hard at all points, but Schumaker's homer over the left field fence in the first inning with one man on was the most spectacular. Doak, O'Halloran and Clemens each got three safeties, and there were ten doubles in the game.

ANDERSON 7; CHARLOTTE 6

Anderson, S. C., July 3.—In a slow game, featured by twenty passes, Anderson won this afternoon from Charlotte, 7 to 6. Bauswine lasted only one inning and was relieved by Van Pelt, who was wild. Blanton is a recruit obtained from Atlanta by Manager Kelly. This was his first professional game and he was nervous and very wild. He seems to have the goods and is considered good material. Charlotte apparently cinched the game in the ninth, but a lucky hit gave the game to Anderson with one out.

SPARTANBURG 9; GREENVILLE 5

Spartanburg, S. C., July 3.—Though ragged in spots, today's game was fast. The locals won 9 to 5, through the ineffectiveness of Flowers, Greenville's last year's pitcher, who has recently been secured by the visitors and was in the game for the first time today. Except in the eighth Ferrell was master of the situation. Each team made a double play in the first, cutting off two men on the bases.

Proximity and White Oak Divide Double Header.

The Proximity third nine divided a double header with a picked nine from White Oak at Cone Athletic Park yesterday. The first game was a one-sided affair, the White Oak Sluggers being unable to connect with Caviness' benders when hits meant runs, while White Oak used three pitchers trying to stop the slugging of the Proximity kids.

Baby's Screen

To make an attractive screen for the nursery, get a light bamboo screen (an old one will do), and remove the silkoline with which these are usually covered. Substitute dark red or green cambric and cover it with colored pictures, pasted on so that each panel is given over to one kind, such as flowers animals, children, etc. The screen will prove its value in the early morning hours, when the baby will lie and look at the pictures instead of starting an untimely concert.
